

ABSTRACT

A mounting device is used to mount a structure, such as a light fixture, in a panel, such as a wall or a door. The mounting device includes two frame halves having identical inner surfaces with press-fit bushings so that the mounting

5 operation can be carried out by merely pressing the two frame halves together.

The outer surfaces remain smooth and unbroken since screw holes are not needed.